In Nendo and Front, Axor has found two new international design partners ready for an open dialogue about redefining the shower. Oki Sato from Nendo, Japan, and Front with Sofia Lagerkvist, Charlotte von der Lancken and Anna Lindgren from Stockholm have different cultural backgrounds – but both design studios are set on reinterpreting showering archetypes, and each in their own unconventional way.

Everything began with a vision - transformed into inspirational Axor shower products during the intense design process. Shower products with a beautiful water design, based on the technology of shower specialist Hansgrohe. Unique, thoughtful design objects that have something to offer to the world: whether it is to bring a bit of magic into the bathroom or a sense of humor. The results could not be more different or surprising.

*Industrial charm
moves into the shower.
Pipes, fittings and
valves – previously
found in factories – are becoming acceptable in society again, but with exceptional elegance.
We experience water
pipes transformed and a funnel as a well-
proportioned shower.
Front loves meaningful
industrial design
and conceals a wealth of technology which seems so familiar and self-
explanatory.*
